Feeding Stuffs Inspection for 1918.

The samples of the various brands of feeding-stuffs for the 1918 inspection were collected by representatives of Mr. Andrew L. Felker, Commissioner of Agriculture. Two hundred and eighty-eight samples were received and analyzed at the Experiment Station. The analytical data in this report have been prepared with the assistance of E. N. Sanders, P. B. Place, J. Bloomfield, C. L. Lane and W. L. Owen.

A list of the ingredients of the compounded feed-stuffs, as certified by the manufacturers, will be found on pages 16 to 20, and some suggestions concerning the other classes of feeds on pages 4 to 6.

Copies of this report will be sent free upon request to the Commissioner of Agriculture, Concord, N. H., or to the Director of the New Hampshire Experiment Station, Durham, N. H.

COTTONSEED MEALS.

There has been a decided drop in the quality of cottonseed meals. Lots containing 41% protein have entirely disappeared from the market. The 38% grades have almost disappeared. Much of the meal which comes into New Hampshire is "off" color and flavor. Nearly all lots contain large quantities of ground hulls.

COTTONSEED FEEDS.

These products are coming upon the market in various forms. Many carry about 20% protein and consist of a mixture of low-grade cottonseed meal and ground cottonseed hulls. One-fourth to one-third of the total weight may be cottonseed hulls. Cottonseed feed corresponding to the above description should not cost more than one-half as much as a good grade of cottonseed meal. The cottonseed meal in these products usually is "off" color and flavor.

WHEAT BY-PRODUCTS.

The wheat feeds are being milled more closely than heretofore and nearly all of the starchy portion of the wheat berry is removed. This is in keeping with the government milling requirements.

CORN PRODUCTS.

The corn products are of good quality.

OAT PRODUCTS.

The feed-stuffs which contain oat products should be scrutinized with much care. Some of these are very good in quality. Others are poor and carry large quantities of oat hulls. Oat hulls are now sold at wholesale at about $20 per ton. When they are mixed with other products and sold as a compounded feed, the consumer pays $40 to $50 per ton for them.

The extended use of oat products for human consumption has created a tremendous output of oat by-products, especially oat hulls. These are being ground and sold both as such and in mixtures. They move more readily when mixed with more valuable products and consequently they are being found in larger quantities in the compounded feeds.

At present there is not a very wide difference between the selling price of some stock feeds which contain large amounts of oat hulls and some thoroughly good products.

DISTILLERS' GRAINS.

Distillers' grains are of good quality but scarce.

FLAXSEED MEAL.

The flaxseed meals have been uniformly good.

GLUTEN FEED.

Gluten feeds and meals have maintained their quality.

PEANUT FEEDS.

Peanut feeds are coming into the state; some of these are of excellent quality, some are not.

BARLEY FEEDS.

Barley feeds are coming into our markets. These vary widely in composition. Some lots are ground hulls and screenings; other lots are much better. The feeds which contain barley products should be examined before they are purchased. They may or may not be desirable when the price and quality are considered.

HIGH-GRADE COMPOUNDED FEEDS.

The producers of the high-grade and high-protein dairy feeds are maintaining the quality of their products.

MOLASSES FEEDS.

The price and composition should largely determine whether they should be used.

POULTRY FEEDS.

Poultry feeds are very high priced. Usually they sell for about the price of the most expensive ingredient they contain even when that is present in very small quantities. The poultryman should examine what he buys and the price of the constituents of which it is composed.

THE GUARANTEE.

All feed-stuffs sold in New Hampshire should be guaranteed, both in respect to their chemical composition and the ingredients of which they are composed.

CRUDE FIBER.

The higher grades of compounded products contain relatively small amounts of crude fiber. The statement covering the ingredients of any mixture will show from what principal sources the fiber comes. The crude fiber appears in the guaranteed amount of carbohydrates. When the amount of crude fiber is deducted from the amount of carbohydrates, more accurate information is had about the amount of good carbohydrates the product contains. The crude fiber has little value because it has a very low digestibility.

The consumers of this state have access to information before buying. It is of little value to the consumer to know that he has bought badly after the article has been bought and paid for. He should be especially discriminating while prices are high. Freight rates are the same for both poor and good products. Also commissions and selling charges are as much, if not more, on the poor products, because they are more difficult to sell. The consumer should keep in mind the fact that oat and barley hulls, corn-cob meal and cottonseed hulls are no more valuable in a mixture than when they are unmixed.
